As of the first 11 months of the year, China's coking coal imports hiked 21.5 percent to 57.4 million tonnes, of which Mongolia accounted for 38 percent or 21.8 million tonnes.

In addition, the Minister of Finance announced that by January 2023, China will open its borders, allowing regular traffic and will not require Covid-19 tests from coal truck drivers entering via Gashuunsukhait port.

The decision is expected to have a positive impact on Mongolia's foreign trade, exports, and foreign exchange reserves.
